

OVERVIEW

Whitetail Ridge offers private instruction for all golfers as well as junior camps, beginning golfer programs, and clinic type instruction. Class A PGA Head Golf Professional Patrick MacDonald and Assistant Golf Professional Alex Balog, a PGA Apprentice, conduct all of the lesson programs at Whitetail Ridge. Both instructors utilize the latest teaching methods including video analysis and other modern technology to capture swing data and faults. This information is used to develop lesson plans and to create various drills and physical activities to help you achieve your maximum golf potential.

It is our belief that anyone wishing to improve their golf game needs more than one lesson. There are likely a couple of issues resulting in poor performance that can't be addressed in just one lesson. We do however have options for those looking for a "band aid" or quick fix lesson. Whitetail will offer clinic type lessons in 2015 for those looking for help in just one particular area of their game. There was a stat out there that only 15-20% of golfers take regularly scheduled lessons. Some barriers include: price, time, intimidation, and nervousness about taking a lesson. Our instructors put your mind at ease with our relaxed approach and affordable programs. Please consult with one of the professionals to start improving your game today!

INDIVIDUAL LESSONS

Private individual instruction is the best way to start improving your golf game. The instructor is focused solely on you the student during private one on one lessons. Each new student that signs up for individual instruction will go through an initial three lesson series. The initial lesson will consist of an interview between the student and instructor to address: current strengths and weaknesses, physical limitations, prior instruction experiences, current practice habits, an evaluation of current clubs in the bag, and the ultimate goals for the student and much more.

There will also be a video analysis during the first lesson to gather data from the full swing as well as the short game. Once the data has been collected and analyzed, the instructor will develop lesson plans and drills for the two remaining lessons. After the third lesson is complete a recap and future action plan will be created to help you continue to improve. The instructors offer a friendly and relaxed approach to teaching, making every lesson enjoyable and productive. Whether it is a slicing driver, inconsistent iron shots, bladed wedge shots, or a bulky putter we can help you fix it! Schedule your lesson series today and start watching your scores drop!

PLAYING LESSONS

Some of the greatest information on PLAYING the game can come from "real time" experiences and situations on the course. A playing lesson will address your overall approach and strategy to the game from tee to green. The instructor will observe your play over four holes and suggest new ideas and strategies that will improve your performance on the course and help lower your scores. Playing lessons are done on the course during non peak hours.

CLINIC LESSONS

The clinic style lesson is yet another instructional opportunity at Whitetail Ridge. Clinics are small group lessons that deal with a specific topic. Clinics are open to anyone and are held twice per month April-September. Cost is $25 per clinic and a complete schedule of dates and topics can be found on our website. Clinics are ideal for adult or junior beginners or those looking for help in just one area of their game.
